son often said to his friends, that made him president of the Pennsylvania Railroad. This is the way he told the story:

career I had maped out might be ended.
"I was told to lay off for three or four weeks, went down to Philadelphia, and gradually drifted to the Pennsylvania road's place on south Fourth street. They were doing repair work to some cars when I happened along, and, being fresh from the shops, I was able to offer some suggestions, which pleased the general manager. He was talking to me when another man came along who istened to what we said. He asked me who and what I was. He asked me now I spelled my name, and I said

confronted by three masked men, one of whom leveled a revolver against his breast and demanded to know where Cooper's money was hidden. Kellar's wife hearing the noise came down stairs, and another of the robbers covered her with a revolver. Compelling Kellar to take a lighted lamp in each hand, the robbers began to ransack the house They found $337. The robbers retreated to the woods near by, where they got into a vehicle and drove off in the direction of Capon Bridge. the immense crowd attending the Confederate exercises. HEAT IN THE PHILIPPINES .- The suffering of the soldiers in the Philippines in consequence of the hot, damp tropical climate is intense. They drop out of line on the march in hundreds, and only a small percentage of the men engaged in the last expedition were in the ranks when the command reached its destination. The failure of the last movement was due, in fact, to inability
